ABBEY'S THEATRE.

Henry Irving. Ellen Terry and the London Lyceum company took possession once more of Abbey's Theatre last night. The play was "Becket," which was produced in the same sumptuous manner as before. Irving's Becket is a highly interesting impersonation, and her travels have not interfered with the charm of Miss Ellen Terry's Rosamund.

"Backet" will be represted to-night. will be repeated to-night will be the play to-morrow

AMERICAN THEATRE.

The American Theatre became a combination house last night, and J. K. Emmet had the honor of being the first attraction, with his play, "Fritz in a Madhouse." For the occasion, Maggie Cline was engaged, and she saug several of her dainty ditties, to the extreme delectation of the audience. Mr. Emmet was supported by Charles Stedman, Louis Grisel, Emily Lytton, Blanche Weaver and others.

H. R. JACOBS THEATRE.

"The Hustler," a ronring farce-comedy, was the attraction last night at H. R. Jacobs Theatre. John Kernell, the Irish comedian, appeared in the leading role; Gus Mills played the part of the landlady; Moille Thompson was the soubrette; Emil Hensel was the German, and James E. Smith was the tramp. In the second act, a Salvation Army rally was introduced.

"Blue Grass," a "blood and thunder" play, new to this city, was acted at the People's Theatre last night. It tells a conventional story of the order known as "popular," and several of the incidents are quite cleverly arranged. The play was staged very effectively, and the sudience applauded frequently. The leading roles were interpreted by Mrs. Cyril Norman and R. A. Roberts, and they were well supported.

HARLEM OPERA-HOUSE HARLEM OPERA-HOUSE

Gus Thomas's play, "In Mizzoura," returned to the metropolis last night and began a week's engagement at Hammerstein's Harlem Opera-House. Nat Goodwin was seen as the good-tempered little Sheriff of Pike County, and his work was as enjoyable as ever, although his health is not as good as it might be Burr McIntosh, Minnie Dupree and Jean Clara Walters were in the cast.

EDEN MUSEE.

The stage enterta'nment at the Eden Musee yesterday was a very good one. Majilton, the clever English ballad singer, who has just arrived from England, was the principal navelty. Lola Yberri contributed her picturesque and artistic dances, Mass Ruth Davenport sang, and Consuela Tortajada also appeared. The tuneful Hungarian Band gave the usual concerts. HEREMANN'S THEATRE.

HERRMANN'S THEATRE. HERRMANN'S THEATRE.

J. M. Hill's entertainers in the usual continuous performance flourished at Herrmann's Theatre yesterday. They were Oltake, the litle comet, who sang and danced: Bryant and Richmond, clever sketch artists; Allan May, the balladist, and a number of others. Lots in New Jersey were again distributed, aithough the weather did not exactly induce thoughts of Summer homes.

DORISS MUSEUM DORIS'S MUSEUM.

DORIS'S MUSEUM.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, surgeon and ethnologist of the Peary expedition to the North Pole, lectured very interestingly at Doris's Eighth Avenue Museum yesterday. He imparted a good deal of valuable information on the subject of the habits and customs of the Esquimaux. A troupe of Esquimaux with their "accessories" appeared with him. Doris's stock company presented a play called "All For Gold."

MADISON SQUARE CONCERT HALL. Mark Twain and James Whitcomb Riley read from their own works at the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall. Isst night, and gave a very enjoyable entertainment. They were assisted by Douglas Sheriey, who has a reputation as "The Kentucky Story-Teller." He read a story called "Perhaps." Mark Twain made a hit with "The Jumping Frog." and Mr. Riley with "That Old Sweetheart of Mine."

The reason for the organization leaving its present club-house is because of the buildings on the east side of their present building having been built out ten feet further than the Club building. At the last meeting the President, Julius Harburger, reported the Club financially and numerically to be in a very prosperous condition. The Club is as aggressively anti-Tammanny as ever, and intends to make the Seventh As-
